

Simmons Bedding Picks Learn.com to Develop Online Training (Jan 06)

Sunrise, Fla. -- Jan. 19

Learn.com, a provider of power-on-demand e-learning, announced that Simmons Bedding Company, a mattress manufacturer, has selected the LearnCenter LMS/LCMS to centralize reporting records and deliver on-demand training and development.

"We selected the Learn.com LearnCenter after a thorough selection process. Our team was looking for a solution that was extremely user-friendly both from a user and from an administrative standpoint without sacrificing robust functionality. Simmons has a corporate office building, a research and development facility, and 20 manufacturing facilities across the United States and Puerto Rico. Using LearnCenter, we will host all of our training records in one location and allow associates to take training on-demand from anywhere," said Jason Young, Director of People and Organizational Development at Simmons Bedding Company.

"E-Learning is an important initiative for our organization because we want to be able to communicate a consistent training message across the network and rollout training to our team quickly without having to bring them into a classroom," said Wade Vann, Senior Vice President and CIO at Simmons. "LearnCenter integrates with our Microsoft Outlook email system and our PeopleSoft HR software to ensure compatibility and user inclusion."

"During the selection process, our team visited Learn.com headquarters in Sunrise, Florida to meet the Learn.com team and we were very impressed with their professionalism and depth. Ultimately, the experience helped us better understand their operations and solidify the partnership. We are looking forward to a long partnership with Learn.com," said Young.

©2006 Media Tec Publishing